I'm currently using Windows and therefore Emacs (and AUCTeX) only run in the command line. Currently I build a new project through Vim or a shell script. I'm sure there must be a way to have the project files compiled in Emacs and compile them with AUCTeX if I want to have some kind of shell build function instead of a Vim script or the shell script itself. I don't want to get mired into the emacs-shell-file.el project and the whole Emacs build system. So what are some good (Free / Open Source) resources on packaging / distributing / building / creating packages? I'm interested in learning how projects like NPM or Maven are packaged and distributed (if there are ways to build on different platforms) A: Look at the target functions of GNU's emacs-shell-file.el.
